Some of North America’s most fertile soil lies an hour’s drive from Manhattan in an area known as the “Black Dirt” region of Orange County, NY. This area is both a prosperous suburb and a farm community where local farm workers often face difficult economic conditions. Local programs like Warwick Community Kitchen (WCK) work to lend a hand to these residents. For roughly $10 a person WCK provides a hot meal and a bag lunch to any local resident in need of one. We appreciate your help with this effort. Thank you.
